“Compete With Integrity”

Episode 4: Output restriction

- Super: Compete With Integrity
The following story is purely fictitious
- Voice-over: Here're the invitation cards.
Voice-over: Congratulations, Mrs Ho!
Voice-over: I hope to see you all then.
Voice-over: Running a market leading company and having such a helpful son who's now getting married, you must be really proud!
Voice-over: So, will there be a lavish bird's nest banquet at the wedding?
Voice-over: That's a great idea.
Voice-over: Jokes aside, let's talk business.
None of us have really been doing well recently.
We must think of something to boost the profit.
I've been thinking to reduce the supply together.
When there's less supply, we can raise the price.
Voice-over: You're the industry leader. We'll take our cue from you.
Voice-over: Yes, things are only precious when they're rare. I second your plan.
Voice-over: I object.
What if you were the consumers? Would you still buy any bird's nest if you were being ripped off like this?
- Super: Output restriction agreed between competitors is serious anti-competitive conduct under the Competition Ordinance.
Businesses should make independent commercial decisions and never collude with each other to restrict output.
